GREATER MALAYSIA

FROM reports to hand at the moment, it seems that the Malayan Prime Minister Tengku Abdul Rahman is satisfied with the progress made towards the creation of a Greater Malaysia.

There is, of course, quite a long way to go before discussions on a greater federation of Malaysia take concrete form, yet the good-will atmosphere in which Tengku Abdul Rahman and Prime Minister Macmillan held their talks in London seems a happy omen to the play yet to be performed. But before the curtain drops on the final scene, it might be worth while to try to sketch in one or two scenes which might not run so smoothly.

Before this Southeast Asia drama can proceed any further, the views of the people of North Borneo and Sarawak have to be consulted while the protectorate of Brunei, a wealthy and rapidly developing area will have something to say.

THESE latter places have been comparatively free from the political strife which has scourged Malaya proper, and it is obvious that they will not be willing to federate unless they are assured that the subversive influences which have operated in Malaya are prevented from undermining North Borneo, Sarawak, and Brunei.

While it cannot be denied that a Greater Malaysia would form a stronger economic unit than exists in the present condition of separation, it must be asked where this federation is likely to finish up.

It requires little imagination to picture what will happen with Singapore within the proposed federation. For Communist influence in Singapore is extremely strong if only for the reason that part of the Chinese population turns to the People's Republic of China for its lead.

WE are only too aware of how minority groups within a state can under imagined or assumed persecution call upon their powerful home states to redress their wrongs. That example has been demonstrated in Europe time and again, and it is by no means improbable that such a situation could be created in Singapore.

Further, Brunei with its oil which has brought wealth and influence to that protectorate must be regarded as rather a plum which dangles temptingly before the eyes of less affluent states.

Certainly, on paper, the idea of a Greater Malaysia seems good. But the facts stated here cannot be overlooked. It would be utterly fantastic if a federation was achieved, only to see it swallowed up to supplement the rice bowl of a hungrier yet more powerful neighbour.

NO doubt, all this has been taken into account, yet in the light of so many former disastrous decisions taken during the last decade in this part of the world, a timely warning of anticipated trouble is not amiss.

All people of goodwill regard any union of states which stabilises an economy and encourages political unity, with satisfaction.

On the other hand, it must be remembered that we are not always dealing with people who reciprocate such tidings of joy.

Labour Party flays the Immigration Bill

UPROAR IN PARLIAMENT

Mac defends plan under bitter attack

London, Nov. 23.

The House of Commons was in wild uproar tonight as Prime Minister, Mr Harold Macmillan sharply defended the Government's Commonwealth Immigration Bill under opposition attack.

Mr Macmillan has been charged with failing to consult the leaders of Commonwealth governments on his plan to limit the growing flood of immigrants, many of them coloured, pouring into overcrowded Britain.

Labour MP's cheered loudly as opposition leader, Mr Hugh Gaitskell, heatedly joined the exchanges. There were shouts of "Resign" and "What a way to run the British Commonwealth."

At one point Mr Gaitskell referred to the statement of Sir Granville Adams, Prime Minister of the West Indies Federation, that he had not been consulted over the Bill.

MACMILLAN — A controlled policy of immigration

"In view of the reaction of the West Indies, it would have been a courteous gesture, if no more, to invite Sir Granville Adams to come to this country and discuss with him, not merely the details — but the whole principle — of the Bill," Mr Gaitskell suggested amidst opposition cheers.

The Prime Minister, replying with difficulty because of the shouting from the Labour benches, said coldly:

"I feel that throughout this, you (Mr Gaitskell) have never committed yourself and are trying to ride off on another horse as to whether we should have a controlled system of immigration. This produced a renewed uproar.

Mr Gaitskell brushed and commented angrily: "If you had condescended to attend the debate on the Bill you would not be so foolish as to make that statement."

Other Labour and Liberal MP's joined the fray.

Messages

Mr Macmillan flatly refused to circulate in the official reports, any representations he had received from Commonwealth heads of government and the replies he had made to them.

Exchanges of personal messages between heads of government were confidential, he insisted. But he added:

"In point of fact, since this is pressed, I have myself received no personal messages from any of the Commonwealth Prime Ministers. Comments have been received in response to cables to Commonwealth governments and these are being taken into account in working out details and arrangements and the administration of controls."

Mr Gaitskell, who last night published a cable from Sir Granville Adams protesting that he had not been consulted, said "this was an intolerable way to treat the head of a Commonwealth Government."

Nothing

Mr Macmillan said he had nothing to add to the reply he made last night. This denied that there had been inadequate consultation.

The United Kingdom's government, Mr Macmillan added, had not, so far as he knew, been consulted by any Commonwealth government about its concurrence in any of their own immigration policies.

Commonwealth Relations Secretary Mr Duncan Sandys said some Commonwealth governments had expressed criticism and others had expressed understanding of the policy embodied in the Bill. — AP.

Mishaps mar start of 1st HK cycle tour

We Kyung Yong, a Korean rider, snapped by our cameraman a split-second before he came off. Note the oranges falling from the basket on the handlebars.

Two of the Korean cyclists participating in the First Cycle Tour of Hong Kong came off their bicycles during the first stage of the First Cycle Tour of Hong Kong and were admitted to hospital.

The extent of their injuries is not known, but neither are believed to be in a serious condition.

However, the other four members of their team walked away with the honours at the conclusion of the first stage. They took the first three and the eighth places.

The first

The first Korean to come off his mount was We Kyung Yong. Only two miles from the start at the P. G. Farm, Aberdeen, on a downhill slope at the Re-pulse Bay Bridge, he misjudged his speed, hit a bump, fell off and skidded almost 15 yards on his back.

After a few seconds on the ground he picked himself up, replaced a tyre that had come off his cycle's rear wheel and continued. But before reaching Windy Gap he retired from the stage. He had a bad gash on his calf and buttock.

The other Korean rider to come to grief was Kim Yung Nam. Little is known at the time of going to press exactly what happened. He had made the turn at Shek O and passed Windy Gap on the return leg to Aberdeen when the accident occurred.

When the truck carrying him back to the marshalling point arrived, he was transferred to an ambulance and taken to hospital. The rear wheel of his bike was twisted out of recognition and he had a bad gash over his eye.

Riders of the HK "A" team placed fourth, fifth and sixth to take second place. (See full story on P.8)

Bormann died a rich man, paper claims

Zurich, Nov. 23.

Martin Bormann, Hitler's right-hand man, escaped the ruins of Nazi Germany with Russian help and died only recently as a prosperous businessman, a Swiss weekly claimed today.

The weekly, "Sie und Er" (She and He), began a serial called "The Truth about Martin Bormann," allegedly written by a former associate of the Nazi Party Chief-of-Staff, who disappeared following the collapse of the Third Reich.

The paper said Bormann conspired with the Russians in 1945, before the war ended, and they helped him out of Germany.

FOUNDER

He then founded a secret political organisation behind the front of an international business firm called the "Trade Organisation for Underdeveloped Peoples," it said. But the firm turned into a purely commercial enterprise and Bormann, realising he had no chance of regaining political power, devoted his time to making money.

Bormann travelled widely under a succession of assumed names, the paper said, and was a wealthy man when he died recently somewhere in the Middle East.—UPI.

FERRER COMING ON TUESDAY

Jose Ferrer, star of "Moulin Rouge," will arrive in Hongkong next Tuesday afternoon, November 28.

Mr Ferrer is arriving from Hollywood via Tokyo. He has just finished directing the Roger and Hammerstein musical, "State Fair," starring Pat Boone.

Jose Ferrer is on the way to India where he will play a major role in "Nine Hours to Rama," the Twentieth Century-Fox film to be shot entirely in that country.

£10M LOSS FOR BOAC

London, Nov. 23.

British Overseas Airways Corporation, one of Britain's two state-owned airlines, expects to make a loss of about £10 million this year after paying interest on capital, Mr Peter Thorneycroft, Minister of Aviation, said tonight.

BOAC would also have a difficult time next year and it might take some time before the trend was reversed, he told the House of Commons.

The other state airline, British European Airways Corporation had a chance of breaking even, he said.—Reuter.

PROFESSIONAL MISCONDUCT

3-year suspension for top UK lawyer

London, Nov. 23.

Mr Victor Durand, one of Britain's top criminal counsel, has been suspended from practising for three years after being found guilty of professional misconduct it was announced here today.

The 54-year-old Queen's Counsel, who has one of the busiest criminal practices in London, was suspended by the Inner Temple, one of the four English Inns of court legal societies.

APPEAL

The Inner Temple's announcement of the suspension, only the second on record, followed a three-day hearing before the Temple's masters on three charges connected with a recent court case involving a police officer and a press photographer.

Mr Durand has the right to appeal.

Last June, Mr Durand appeared as defence counsel for a police officer, Richard Fleming, when a photographer Mr Alan Meek appealed against a dismissed damages claim.

Mr Meek had alleged assault and false arrest by the police officer.

The appeal court ordered a retrial of the action because the fact that the police officer had been demoted had been concealed.

Mr Durand said, at the time, that he took full responsibility for the decision not to reveal the demotion.

A judge hearing the appeal said the concealment of the police officer's changed rank had affected the original judge's summing up and must have affected the deliberations of the jury.

The only other case on record of a Queen's Counsel being suspended occurred in 1874 when Mr Edward Kenealy was disbarred.—Reuter.

A SUNNY WEEKEND PREDICTED

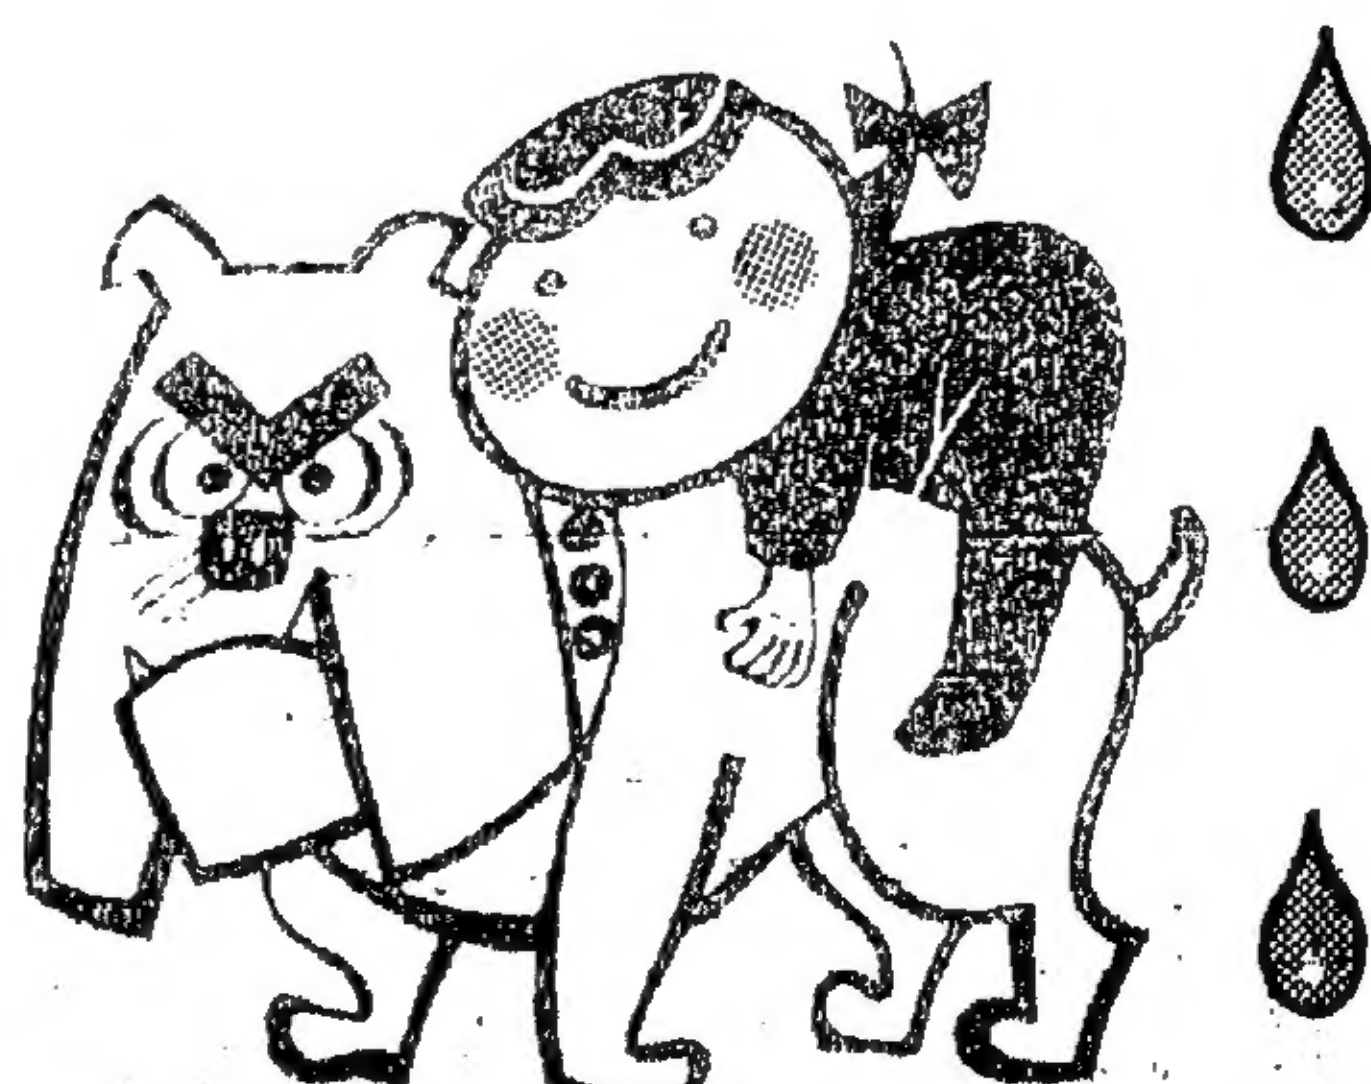

Hongkong's present spell of fine, cool and dry weather will continue over the weekend, a spokesman for the Royal Observatory told the China Mail today.

Temperatures dropped still further after midnight last night, when thermometers registered 57 degrees Fahrenheit, making it the coldest night yet experienced this winter. The temperature during the night before was 59.9 degrees.

RUNNING WILD

Wilmington, Del. Nov. 23. A bulldozer, set in motion by four young boys at play, cut a 1,200-foot long path of destruction near here. No one was injured. But it knocked down two buildings, tore down a kitchen wall, knocked over trees, a hedge, a fence and hit three cars. Estimated damage was $7,500 to $10,000.—AP.

Explanatory Note to Shareholders in connexion with the Extraordinary General Meeting to be held on Saturday, 16th December, 1961, following the Annual General Meeting.

The stock of copies of the Memorandum and Articles of Association of the Company being low, it is necessary to make a further reprint. 3. Directors' fees will be increased so that each Director will receive $9,000 per annum and the Chairman an additional $3,000 per annum over and above that for each Director, in place of the lump sum of $38,000 allowed under the present Articles.

DEVALUATION
RUMOURS HIT
UK SECURITIES

Weakness of Government issues featured yesterday's trading on the Stock Exchange.

LONDON

Prices fell sharply on a broad front, apparently because of rumours of a possible devaluation of the pound sterling.

Other sectors were quiet and uncertain. Bank and insurance stocks reflected the drop in Government issues and showed sizeable losses. Hongkong and Shanghai Bank dropped 15/- to 4.16 1/2.

Industrials however, were not greatly affected although some leaders sagged slightly. Electrical equipment shares were steady. Gold shares were down over a fairly broad front. Coppers and tin improved.

Oil shares failed to maintain initial gains.

BID TO REDUCE
TARIFFS

Washington, Nov. 23.
A private committee supporting liberal trade policies has urged President Kennedy to support sweeping legislation next year that would permit lower tariffs on foreign imports.

In a statement submitted to the White House last Monday, the Committee for a National Trade Policy said the United States must liberalize its trade regulations to benefit its own economy and force tighter economic ties with other countries.

"We regard 1962 as the year of decision in United States foreign economic policy," the group said. A major fight is expected in Congress next year when Mr. Kennedy seeks extension and liberalization of the reciprocal trade programme.

The trade policy committee proposed that Congress give the President power to reduce tariffs by 50 per cent for a period of five years. It also said the President should have authority to place additional items on the duty-free list.

TO ABANDON
'BUY
AMERICAN' POLICY

Washington, Nov. 23.
An American attorney representing Japanese steel producers said yesterday he believed authorities in Miami, Fla., will abandon a "Buy American" policy on materials for the $20,000,000 Miami International Seaport.

Bids for contracts to supply steel and other construction materials for the project already had been received from American firms when the Japanese interests complained against the "Buy American" policy.

Attorney Nelson Stitt said that after presenting his case against the restriction during a hearing in Miami yesterday, the project authorities agreed to ask the country attorney and manager for permission to call for new, international bids.—U.P.I.

SHARES AGAIN
MOVE HIGHER ON HK MARKET

There was a further improvement in prices on the Hong-kong Stock Exchange this morning when buyers again pushed the turnover past the $3 million mark.

The above list of prices shows that during the last week practically every major share showed a loss and yesterday's renewed activity followed up by this morning's buying suggests that low rates have triggered off a new demand.

Banks were one of the few exceptions this morning. The London listed share shows a drop of 15 shillings and on the local market they were unsettled at rates varying from $348 to $354. They finally closed two dollars down on yesterday's last price.

STRONGER

Wheelocks were up fractionally, while Docks tacked on three dollars. Talkoo were stronger and showed a gain of 50 cents on last night's closing rate.

Hotel at $42 is steady, while Lands opened firm only to ease 50 cents during the morning. They are however steady on yesterday's final price.

Electricity slackened off slightly but the utilities performed well with Trans. K.M.B., Lights, Electric, Telephones and Gas all showing better prices.

Jardines was fractionally better, as was Cement.

Watsons put on another dollar, and Dairy Farm was one of the few exceptions today, easing to $36 1/2.

NO RETURN

The market thus ends the week on a firm note though there has been no return to the feature of the share market earlier this year, and on the whole daily increases have been much more modest and sensible.

A glance at the above box shows that a number of shares are yielding well now and should prove attractive to investors.

Electricity shares, with their comparatively lower yields, continue to take the limelight and this is possibly due to continued speculation that Government will shortly permit the company to pay higher dividends, even if at the same time it imposes safeguards for consumers which will cut into profits.

Such an agreement seems inevitable but there is no sign of it materialising yet, despite growing public impatience.

Relations with USSR resumed by Brazil

Brasilia, Nov. 23. The Foreign Ministry announced today that Brazil has resumed diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia. Relations were broken off 14 years ago.

A Foreign Ministry communiqué said: "At 1700 GMT today, diplomatic relations were re-established between Brazil and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics through the exchange of notes at the headquarters of the Foreign Ministry in Brasilia. The two countries will exchange extraordinary and plenipotentiary ambassadors. Present at this act were Presidents of the Foreign Relations Committees of the Senate and House of Deputies."—AP.

30 bodies recovered

from Comet crash

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 23. Thirty bodies have been recovered from the Argentine Comet jet airliner which crashed after takeoff from Campinas airport today. The plane crashed into a eucalyptus grove, killing 40 passengers and 12 crew. Wreckage and bodies were scattered over an area of 2,000 square yards. The fuselage set the grove on fire behind it, and landed on a steep hill. A fire engine dashing to the scene skidded and overturned in the middle of the road, delaying other rescue squads.

Only two bodies have so far been identified—one being the pilot, Captain Moscoso. A New York report named one of the passengers as Martha Smart, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. Alberto Smart, of Manhattan, General Manager of the New York office of Aerolineas Argentinas, owners of the plane.

Local reports said other passengers were the President and general manager of the Argentine Government shipping line, Horacio Esterverena and E. Vago.—Reuter.

MALAYSIA IN A YEAR—THE TENGKU

London, Nov. 23. Tengku Abdul Rahman, Malaya's Prime Minister, said here tonight that the Federation of Malaysia might be set up within a year.

The Tengku was speaking during one of three recorded interviews he made here tonight for the British Broadcasting Corporation. In one, over a radio, he said that Britain and Malaya yesterday agreed that the creation of Malaysia was a "desirable aim".

Malaya, Singapore and the British Borneo territories—Sarawak, Brunei and North Borneo.

Opinion

Asked for his opinion on the timing of the setting up of Malaysia, the Tengku said that Britain and Malaya realized the "urgency of the situation" and Malaysia might come about "perhaps within a year".

In another answer the Tengku said that he saw "not much hope of saving Laos from the Communists" and described the situation there as going "from bad to worse".

Asked if he would oppose U.S. intervention in South Vietnam, he said "if there was need I would not be against it". He added that it might still be possible to save South Vietnam from the Communists.

He said that the defence of that region of Asia required "all the help we can give". Asked if he thought that with the creation of Malaysia there would be a greater chance of containing the Chinese Communist menace, the Tengku said "Yes, I think there is."

Throughout his interview the Tengku stressed that the chief benefit of Malaysia would be a greater chance of resisting Communist aggression and infiltration.

Turning to the creation of Malaysia, the Tengku said he hoped the commission that is to be set up to get the views of the people of the British Borneo territories could complete its work within three months of being set up.

On the agreement on the Singapore base, the Tengku said it would not, in the event of Malaysia, be a SEATO base but it would assist in the defence of Malaysia, Commonwealth defence and in maintaining peace. The defence agreement was a compromise, he said, between the wishes of Britain and Malaya.

The Agricultural Research Council said today that the average content of iodine 131 in milk fell from 117 microcuries per litre in the week ending on November 18.

The tolerable dose for infants under one year is 130 microcuries over a period of a year or higher concentrations for correspondingly shorter periods.—Reuter.

Mr. Davis said that after throwing a sack over his head and bundling him into their van, the thieves drove around for nearly three hours before pushing him out into the street.

After he had got free of his bonds, Mr. Davis phoned the police. They arrived at the News of the World office in Fleet-street, too late to prevent the theft.—Reuter.

U.S. Navy to hunt for Rockefeller

The Hague, Nov. 23. The U.S. Navy is sending an aircraft carrier and other ships to search for New York Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller's missing son Michael, a Dutch Defence Ministry spokesman said today.

The spokesman said that units of the U.S. Seventh Fleet will weigh anchor within the next few hours to aid in the hunt for the 23-year-old explorer missing on the coast of Dutch New Guinea.

The spokesman said: "Following an offer made by Admiral Harold Felt, Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Pacific Fleet, a positive decision was taken here this afternoon."

Accepts

"The Dutch Government has gladly accepted the offer." The spokesman said U.S. Naval patrol planes could be on the spot within 24 hours, "but the surface vessels, including the aircraft carrier will take an estimated two days to reach the position of the Islands River in South New Guinea," he said.

In the meantime, the Dutch Navy would continue the search with all possible materials," the spokesman said.

He said the Royal Australian Air Force also was getting into the hunt. He said two RAAF helicopters would arrive at Perimapoeng, tomorrow. A third helicopter, chartered by the Governor from the Netherlands New Guinea Oil Company, was being carried to the scene by a Dutch Navy frigate, the spokesman said.—UPI.

TV ISSUE IN COLD WAR

Reykjavik, Nov. 23.
Television in Iceland is becoming an issue in the cold war.

Iceland has no TV service of its own, but for the last four years there have been regular transmissions from the U.S. Keflavik air base here for the benefit of American servicemen.

Until this year the signal strength of the programmes was too weak to reach the capital of Reykjavik. Recently, however, the U.S. authorities got permission to increase the power thus providing excellent reception over most of the island.

The move brought an instant boom in Iceland's sales of TV sets. More than 1,000 sets were bought in Reykjavik alone and the number is increasing daily.

RED FURIOUS

Iceland's Communist Party was furious. It introduced a motion in Parliament calling for a ban on Keflavik transmissions, claiming Icelandic culture was being threatened by American influence. The Communists were supported by a number of intellectual groups who also feel that local culture may be endangered by American programmes.

The Communist motion is still to be debated.

Meanwhile, Icelanders continue to watch American TV, regardless of the cold war. AP.

THEATRICAL DIRECTOR WANTED BY POLICE

Des Moines, Nov. 23.
Police are seeking Eric Salmon, a British theatrical director and producer, on a false cheque charge.

Police issued the warrant for his arrest today, accusing Salmon, 43, of allegedly passing about $2,000 in bad cheques while his repertory company was presenting plays here from November 2-8.

He was specifically charged with writing a bad $50 cheque at a local supermarket. Police said he also was accused of writing a phony $900 cheque at a rent-a-car agency and a bad $750 cheque at a hotel.

Salmon, a resident of Liverpool, was thought to be in St. Louis, where his company, Theatre Outlook, Ltd., was scheduled to open a four-day run today.

Police said Salmon reported to St. Louis police on Monday night that he had been robbed of $1,800 which was to have been paid to his actors.—UPI.

Dawn Addams sues for divorce

Rome, Nov. 23.
British-born actress Dawn Addams has filed a divorce suit in Mexico against her husband, Italian Prince Vittorio Massimo, her lawyer disclosed here tonight.

Maria Gutierrez, Rome lawyer for the film beauty, said he flew to Mexico last month to file a divorce suit in a civil court at Chihuahua.

Neither Prince Massimo nor Miss Addams was immediately available for comment.

Miss Addams' divorce step caught Italian social circles by surprise, since the couple has a separation suit pending before a Rome civil court.

Prince Massimo, whose family claims it goes back to the time of Roman emperors, married the British actress on April 29, 1954.

Their only child, Stefano, was born nine months later. In the separation suit, both parties filed charges against each other, trying to win custody of the boy. Stefano is living at his father's country villa outside Rome.—AP.

One year's jail for clerk who embezzled

A clerk who embezzled $550 from his employer was sentenced to one year's imprisonment by Mr. A. Garcia at South Kowloon Magistrate's court this morning.

Tse Cheung-sau, 34, of 81 Woosung-street, second floor, admitted guilt. He was ordered to repay the money to his employer or serve nine more weeks in prison.

The court was told that Tse had been employed in a restaurant by a woman, Fong Fung-wan for a year at a salary of $120 a month. On November 20, the employer told him to collect a sum of $1,700. He was given a cheque for $1,240 and $550 in cash.

He gave the cheque to the employer but kept the cash. When Tse did not return the next day his employer became suspicious and reported the matter to the police.

The defendant said in court that he lost all the money in gambling.

Caught selling obscene books

A 42-year-old magazine seller, Lo Wing, caught selling obscene books and pictures in Wanchai, was fined $1,000 or 10 weeks imprisonment by Mr. T. L. Yang at Causeway Bay Magistrate's court this morning.

He pleaded guilty. Detective Inspector R. P. Styles told the magistrate that a party of police went to defendant's store at 2, Bristol-avenue, ground floor, Wanchai, on Monday and found 50 books and six pictures of an indecent nature.

Defendant had one similar previous conviction.

WANCHAI GETS LESSON IN ROAD SAFETY

Demonstrations of road traffic safety sponsored by the Wanchai Kaifong Welfare Association, were formally opened yesterday by the Commissioner of Police, Mr. H. W. E. Heath.

More than 10,000 school-children from the Wanchai area were present when Mr. Heath cut the ribbon across the zebra crossing with its flashing beacons in the centre of Southern Playground. The demonstrations are designed to illustrate probable causes and prevention of traffic accidents.

The ceremony began with a musical programme of the Pipes and Drums of the Hongkong Police Band.

Members of the Auxiliary Medical Services showed prompt and efficient first aid treatment to victims of road accidents as cars screeched to a stop at the pedestrian crossing.

Methods of improvisation were shown as shirts were torn into bandages to staunch bleeding wounds and pieces of wood were used for splints.

The men of the Royal Army Corps of Signals caused excitement as they wobbled along on bicycles, three abreast, each loaded with empty petrol cans and garbage baskets—and then crashed.

Mr. Tse Long Chiu, AMS Permanent Staff Instructor, gave a commentary explaining diagnosis of injuries and the best methods of treating each patient.

TV ISSUE
IN COLD WAR

Reykjavik, Nov. 23.
Television in Iceland is becoming an issue in the cold war.

Iceland has no TV service of its own, but for the last four years there have been regular transmissions from the U.S. Keflavik air base here for the benefit of American servicemen.

Until this year the social strength of the programmes was too weak to reach the capital of Reykjavik. Recently, however, the U.S. authorities got permission to increase the power, thus providing excellent reception over most of the island.

The move brought an instant boom in Iceland's sales of TV sets. More than 1,000 sets were bought in Reykjavik alone and the number is increasing daily.

RED FURIOUS

Iceland's Communist Party was furious. It introduced a motion in Parliament calling for a ban on Keflavik transmissions, claiming Icelandic culture was being threatened by American influences. The Communists were supported by a number of intellectual groups who also feel that local culture may be endangered by American programmes.

The Communist motion is still to be debated.

Meanwhile, Icelanders continue to watch American TV, regardless of the cold war. —AP

47 SUICIDES
IN OCTOBER

A total of 47 people including 22 women committed suicide in October, a statement by the U.N.A. Prevention of Suicide Group, said today.

Thirty of the suicides were between the ages of 21 and 45 and four were under 20.

Trouble with relatives and failure of marriage and love affairs were the main reasons for the majority of suicides, although seven took their lives because they were suffering from illness.

Twenty-three killed themselves by poison, 15 by jumping from heights, four by hanging and three by weapons.

THEATRICAL
BY POLICE

Des Moines, Nov. 23.
Police are seeking Eric Salmon, a British theatrical director and producer, on a false cheque charge.

Police issued a warrant for his arrest today, accusing Salmon, 43, of allegedly passing about $2,000 in bad cheques while his repertory company was presenting plays here from November 2-8.

He was specifically charged with writing a bad $50 cheque at a local supermarket. Police said he also was accused of writing a phony $900 cheque at a rent-a-car agency and a bad $750 cheque at a hotel.

Salmon, a resident of Liverpool, was thought to be in St. Louis, where his company, Theatre Outlook, Ltd., was scheduled to open a four-day run today.

Police said Salmon reported to St. Louis police on Monday night that he had been robbed of $1,800 while en route to have beer paid to his actors. —UPI sues for divorce

Dawn Addams

Rome, Nov. 23.
British-born actress Dawn Addams has filed a divorce suit in Mexico against her husband, Italian Prince Vittorio Massimo, her lawyer disclosed here tonight.

Matteo Guherrey, Rome lawyer for the film beauty, said he flew to Mexico last month to file a divorce suit in a civil court at Chihuahua.

Neither Prince Massimo nor Mrs Addams was immediately available for comment.

Mrs Addams' divorce step caught Italian social circles by surprise, since the couple has a separation suit pending before a Rome civil court.

Prince Massimo, whose family claim it goes back to the time of Roman emperors, married the British actress on April 29, 1954. Their only child, Stefano, was born nine months later.

In the separation suit, both parties filed charges against each other, trying to win custody of the boy. Stefano is living at his father's country villa outside Rome. —AP

One year's jail
who embezzled

A clerk who embezzled $550 from his employer was sentenced to one year's imprisonment by Mr A. Garcia at South Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

Tse Cheung-sau, 34, of 81 Woosung-street, second floor, admitted guilt. He was ordered to repay the money to his employer or serve nine more weeks in prison.

The court was told that Tse had been employed in a restaurant by a woman, Fong Fung-wan, for a year at a salary of $120 a month.

On November 20, the employer told him to collect a sum of $1,790. He was given a cheque for $1,240 and $550 in cash.

He gave the cheque to the employer but kept the cash.

When Tse did not return the next day his employer became suspicious, and reported the matter to the police.

The defendant said in court that he lost all the money in gambling.

Caught selling
obscene books

A 42-year-old magazine seller, Lo Wing, caught selling obscene books and pictures in Wanchai, was fined $1,000 or 10 weeks imprisonment by Mr T. I. Yang at Causeway Bay Magistracy this morning.

He pleaded guilty.

Deputy Inspector R. P. Styles told the magistrate that a party of police went to defendant's store at 2, Bristol-avenue, ground floor, Wanchai, on Monday and found 50 books and six pictures of an indecent nature.

Defendant had one similar previous conviction.

WANCHAI GETS LESSON IN ROAD SAFETY

Demonstrations of road traffic safety sponsored by the Wanchai Kaifong Welfare Association, were formally opened yesterday by the Commissioner of Police, Mr H. W. E. Heath.

More than 10,000 school-children from the Wanchai area were present when Mr Heath cut the ribbon across the zebra crossing with its flashing beacons in the centre of Southern Playground. The demonstrations are designed to illustrate probable causes and prevention of traffic accidents.

The ceremony began with a musical programme of the Pipes and Drums of the Hongkong Police Band.

Members of the Auxiliary Medical Services showed prompt and efficient first aid treatment to victims of road accidents as cars screeched to a stop at the pedestrian crossing.

SHIRTS TORN

Methods of improvisation were shown as shirts were torn into bandages to staunch bleeding wounds and pieces of wood were used for splints.

The men of the Royal Army Corps of Signals caused excitement as they wobbled along on bicycles, three abreast, each loaded with empty petrol cans and garbage baskets—and then crashed.

Mr Tse Long Chiu, AMS Permanent Staff Instructor, gave a commentary explaining diagrams.

Has Khrushchev written

CAN Nasser survive? That is the question which the next few months will answer.

by LORD LAMBTON

At the time of the Syrian revolution, the country, on the surface, rallied to him, and underneath that surface, how deep the loyalty is, only time will tell.

At the time of the Syrian revolution, the country, on the surface, rallied to him, and underneath that surface, how deep the loyalty is, only time will tell.

Cairo still keeps a brave face on events, and still tries to look like a modern European city. But if you go to Alexandria, which always had a far subtler civilisation than Cairo, and which was the foundation of the country's trading prosperity, you get there a different picture.

Economies

It is true that there is a new building, and that there is a new air of modernity. But the town along the coast, and the doubtful if anyone next year after the present, promising economies can be found to last in them.

And if you go to the facade, you see a very different story, for the intellectual and commercial Alexandria is gone on its feet.

Inefficiency

Of the foreign population, around 200,000. Greeks, Cypriots and Europeans are

There is an extraordinary air of decay about the city. It has something of the air of a film-set town which is not in use, while the streets remain un-manned.

Alexandria is the visual life of the actual state of the country, and the streets remain un-manned.

But apart from all this, it did not seem to me when I was in Egypt that Nasser would fall, for despite the enormous blow to his prestige, he had, and still has, the army under his control.

The fact that he has built up into a career of military success, and that he has a strong following, may be enough to keep him in power.

Desperate

But will this be enough, for the morale of the country is so low, and the economy is so desperate, that there is a real danger of a thing which is to undermine Nasser.

That move was the quick Russian recognition of the breakaway Syrian State.

This must have come as a most unpleasant surprise to Nasser, for the new State was more opposed to Communism than it was to him, and he would surely have imagined that one of the ways in which he might regain the initiative would have been through an association with the Communists in Syria against the new Government.

That the price which he would have had to pay for this would have been greatly increased. Communist influence in Egypt, he would probably have reckoned to be worth while, but he cannot have reckoned on the side.

den. Communistic recognition which in itself is a direct affront to him.

There is nearly always a meaning in Communist action, and the meaning of Russia's recognition of Syria is that they have probably decided to dis-pense with Nasser.

Egotistical

They have probably found that he was too difficult to work with, too egotistical, too national, too Marxist, and they have decided that if they do not help him he will almost inevitably fail, and that in the ensuing chaos which will result in Egypt they will have a better chance of making progress than they have while he survives.

If this is the case, then Nasser has no future. He has bitten the West, and now he is being bitten by the East, and his country is in economic ruin.

And while it may give to many a momentary pleasure to see him in decline, I myself would feel far happier if I could see how an alternative Government is going to rule Egypt effectively once he is gone.

HOW LONG CAN WE AFFORD LORD HOME?

IN July last year Mr Macmillan reshuffled his Cabinet. To the Foreign Office he appointed, for the first time for 20 years, a member of the House of Lords, Alexander Frederick Douglas-Home, fourteenth Earl of Home.

Immediately there was an outcry from the Labour benches: The Foreign Secretary should not be in the Lords. There were other voices.

We were reassured by the thought that Mr Macmillan would still be the boss, and he was in the Commons.

The events of the past year have proved us wrong: what-ever criticisms we may have of Lord Home, his pluck, his courage, his Foreign Office he is now undisputed master.

Indeed, a Conservative Party disenchanted by Mr Macmillan, disillusioned by Mr Selwyn Lloyd, divided over Mr Heath's Common Market enthusiasms, has made Lord Home its pluck-up. No Minister is more able to give enthusiasm in the Conservative breast.

Reassuring

Even if Britain is going cap in hand to the world's financiers, or negotiating with Europe from a position of economic weakness, it is reassuring to the Conservatives to hear the genuine voice of nineteenth-century Britain in the tough, uncompromising words of his Lordship.

We can forget how, as Parliamentary Private Secretary to Neville Chamberlain, he mouthed the abject formulae of appeasement over Hitler and Mussolini, today he fires verbal salvos at the Russians which must have Khrushchev quaking in his shoes.

Unfortunately, world affairs are too serious to be settled by speeches in the House of Lords. Gone are the days when the Chancelleries of Europe could be shaken by a thunderbolt from Britain's Foreign Office. Action and leadership, not strong words and empty gestures, provide the only road to peace. Firmness of purpose, strength and independence of resolution, these are what Britain must bring to the problem of world affairs.

Shattered

In 1958, strongly supported by the Labour Party, and I believe, the country, Mr Macmillan went to Russia and negotiated with the Soviet leaders. He brought back a plan for making peaceful coexistence work.

The question of Berlin and Germany should be settled by peaceful negotiation based on the creation of a zone in Europe free of military forces, and above all, of nuclear weapons.

But Mr Macmillan returned to the West and his dream was shattered by Dr Adenauer's veto.

Afterwards, in the mood of disillusionment which followed the breakdown of the Summit conference, a tired Macmillan handed over the Foreign Office to Lord Home.

I do not believe that the worsening of Anglo-Soviet relations since that time has been entirely a coincidence.

Last March, Anastas Mikoyan, First Deputy Premier of the Soviet Union, treated me to a long speech on the relations between Britain and the U.S.S.R. He recalled Mr Macmillan's visit.

"We felt," he said, "that here was a man who really meant to build and foster peace and understanding between our two countries. He outlined the basis on which our fears about the nuclear rearmament of Germany could be set at rest. But now we have the speeches of Lord Home, and Mr Macmillan must agree with them for he has never repudiated one."

Too easy

It would be one thing if the Foreign Secretary confined himself to attacking Russian policies. But in speech after speech he has talked of the Russians in terms which suggest we can never have peace.

It is only too easy to find in Soviet tactics the material for justified criticism, even anger, and the nuclear explosions of "Mr Megaton" over the past month have justified strong words and our condemnation.

But we have to recognise in this modern world, with two strongly-armed super-powers, and two utterly opposing ways of life, that there is only one alternative to coexistence, and that is, as Lord Ailes has said, "co-death."

Not the way

What we have to do is show our utter determination to defend our way of life with our Western Allies, but at the same time, our equally strong-minded resolve to "co-exist" with the negotiations which, without sacrifice of principle, can remove the causes of tension and defuse the unexploded nuclear bombs which threaten world peace.

Regrettably the speeches and actions of Britain's Foreign Secretary, recalling the brinkmanship of John Foster Dulles a few years ago, makes such policies impossible.

To talk all the time in terms of a Holy War against the Soviet people may be a wonderful way to relieve our over-lired feelings, but it is not the way to peace.

What Lord Home fails to realise is that Moscow in the past month has been the scene of a bitter struggle for control over the destinies of the Communist world. Mr Khrushchev may appear a bully to us, a man who threatens the West with bigger and more evil bombs, who does not shrink from poisoning the atmosphere for years to come. But, to the tough militarists in the Kremlin, to the old Stalinists in his party Congress, to his critics in China and other foreign Communist parties, Khrushchev's talk of peaceful co-existence, his postponement of his Berlin ultimatum, are regarded as a betrayal of Communism; as appeasement of their Western enemies.

How grateful they must be for the speeches of Foreign Secretary Home, for, they will be arguing, "Do not these speeches prove that the West is led by men who believe that in the long run the two systems can never co-exist, and one must destroy the other?" We have had the same intransigence over Berlin, the hottest spot in international politics today.

The line the West should be taking is clear. We must stand on the principle that the citizens of West Berlin have the right to choose the system under which they will live.

We must insist that the lines of communication between Berlin and the West are guaranteed and safe-guarded by means more secure than a word which can be broken.

Realistic

But we have not the right to plunge the world into war over the issue whether travel passes are stamped by a man in grey, or a man in green uniform, or over a blind refusal to recognise that East Germany exists, whether we like it or not.

Russia and East Germany have the right to be reassured about the nuclear rearmament of West Germany, as many visits to Berlin have found that not only their leaders in the Kremlin but the man in the street cannot forget the 17,000,000 who died at the hands of the Germans.

We in the Labour Party have called for realistic negotiations over Berlin—recognition of Germany's eastern frontiers, a measure of recognition of the East German regime, in return for clear safeguards—not paper pacts—for the independence of West Berlin and free access to the city.

I believe that President Kennedy, provoked and angered though he has been, is equally ready to negotiate on the basis of a really solid, worthwhile package deal.

But what does the noble lord, Lord Home, say?

Khrushchev talks about the possibility of negotiations: so far the Russian attitude is "What is mine is mine, and what is yours is negotiable." It is really no good looking upon the word negotiation as an inviolation that can be repeated and will solve everything.

Mr Khrushchev is playing political poker and we cannot, and ought not to, disclose our cards.

Strong words such as these cost nothing, and they no doubt earn for Lord Home the plaudits of Dr Adenauer and his more intransigent supporters. More effective would be firm but realistic negotiations.

Danger

We are not dealing, as Lord Home seems to think, with the nineteenth-century Caarist Court. This is 1961 not 1861 and we are dealing with modern, up-to-date, scientifically minded men who believe in their system as much as we believe in ours.

These are men who will respond to honest statements of the British position given in firm and clear accents.

In easier times we could possibly afford to be represented in the councils of the world by a man whose main claim to selection was his hereditary peerage. But this is an age of acute world danger.

It is also an age of un-examined opportunity, if we recognise that international relations are not a matter of Foreign Office but of people speaking to people.

MONEY ON THE RUN

Salted away in the Swiss banks —£1,000 million by FREDERICK ELLIS

Zurich. A LEADING banker in this city of 100 banks told me: "Every time Khrushchev's tummy rumbles a million pounds pours into Switzerland." And Switzerland, traditional financial haven for the fortunes of the world's wealthy, is embarrassed by the riches showering upon her.

Neutral in two wars, Switzerland has long been the "parking lot" for personal fortunes. But so much refugee money is pouring into the tiny State that the banks charge the foreign customers for keeping it.

Despite this and other off-putting restrictions the money still floods in as crisis follows crisis round the world.

And Switzerland is now the world's most powerful financial Power. Recently, the Swiss National Bank lent about £16,000,000 to bolster President Kennedy's wavering dollar, once the world's most mighty currency.

Now Britain is arranging a loan of £18,000,000 to support the £ against raids from currency speculators.

All this from a country with 5,000,000 people, including 500,000 Italians imported to keep the wheels turning... for there is no unemployment in Switzerland—only too many jobs for too few hands.

Just how much "Fluchtgeld"—flight money—is allowed in the Swiss vaults is a State secret, but bankers here estimate the total at more than £1,000 million.

And the bankers here are the world's most discreet. Some accounts are known merely by numbers—keeping the customer's identity strictly private.

NEST EGG

Money is even coming in from behind the Iron Curtain, from Communist leaders taking an "insurance policy" should the regime ever collapse.

Most of the Communist "flight money" comes from Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Cuba, and the Soviet Union.

Meanwhile, as the "Fluchtgeld" keeps flowing in, the Swiss adopt a philosophic attitude which was summed up for me by a Geneva banker: "Nowhere is really safe today."

Switzerland is safe, then, in the end.

The troubled Shah of Persia, who has a small house in Geneva as yet unloved in, has a personal fortune salted down in Swiss bank vaults.

The wealth comes in in all forms—gold bars, sovereigns, diamonds, and plain cash.

The embarrassment of Swiss riches is such that the Government has banned foreign investors from buying any more Swiss shares, which have been forced up to skyscraper prices.

And it is virtually impossible for foreigners to buy land. Even international celebrities and film stars are now having difficulty in buying luxury homes.

ONE WORRY

Swiss gold reserves more than equal the net currency, and reserves almost equal those of Britain and the whole Sterling Area.

The Swiss have one big worry—that their franc will become an international currency like the £ and the dollar.

This would mean that the value of the franc would, become liable to change according to the fluctuations of world markets, thus unbalancing their economy.

Meanwhile, as the "Fluchtgeld" keeps flowing in, the Swiss adopt a philosophic attitude which was summed up for me by a Geneva banker: "Nowhere is really safe today."

Switzerland is safe, then, in the end.

BRITISH DESIGNERS ARE GETTING SMARTER

Glamorous ladies-in-waiting

by JEAN WISEMAN

London.

PRINCESS Margaret has finally ended the idea that a mother-to-be cannot look really glamorous. And since the Princess chose most of her clothes from ordinary maternity shops, it gives an indication of just how smart our designers are in this sphere.

Some maternity clothes seem to provide even better value than ordinary clothes! For instance, Teddy Beverly, of the famous "sisters", chose a pure wool dress in a tiny muted check with white collar, black boot buttons and neat, highly-placed patent strapping; price, £5 5s. And the same house has pure wool dresses at less than that. (MODERN MOTHER.)

Mrs London Silver, the designer, also makes a big feature of wool jersey slacks with varying tops—extremely comfortable for stay-at-home mothers.

Formal

If you want to be a little more formal, wool flannel apron dresses, buttoning through, lend variety with a change of sweaters or attractive wool striped shirts. (The latter from MATERNALLY YOURS.)

At a centre run by Mrs Mintz, whose husband was a pioneer in winning fashion freedom for the large woman, there are attractive showrooms where clothes range from those at modest prices to the quite exclusive, but always with taste and high fashion appeal. A personal mail service is also conducted.

Quiet music in the background, coffee for mothers and sherry for nervous (!) fathers, all form part of this very special service. (MATERNALLY YOURS.) And there is the royal couturier, Hardy Amies, as fashion consultant, offering lovely wool fabrics and beautiful colours—a hallmark of his work.

Says this designer: "Pick a good suit first," and he interprets his views with a real winner in exclusive herringbone tweed. The jacket has a graceful, new and very flattering scarf collar and high fringed pockets; the skirt is designed to stay gracefully slim. (Price about 13½ gns.)

Good wool baratheas skirts can be bought for under £4, and there are also smart matching jenkins. Jersey slacks can also be teamed up with matching waistcoats, or with others in colourful jacquard wool jersey. For evening occasions, there are most glamorous wool jersey dresses. These are lightly decorated with metallic thread and are velvet trimmed. (Price around 12 gns.)

Maternity clothes are no longer bought and thrown away. Suits, skirts and slacks can all be worn after the event and dresses can be belted if desired.

Stylish

Don't persuade yourself that you can wear just anything for many months! It will do nothing for your morale and even less for your husband's. Now that many women continue their jobs most of the waiting time, smartly-styled wool suits and dresses on business-like lines are being made at really modest prices. Designers know that to persuade a woman into several maternity outfits, these have to be both stylish and moderately priced.

Budget for maternity wear as you would for your season's wardrobe—the money will go much further. This year brings a crop of famous, glamorous—and wise—mothers-to-be. If you await a "happy event" you would do well to follow their taste in clothes.

Wishful Thinking

—Teddy, The Bear, Wants To Join The Circus—

By MAX TRELL

"If I JOINED the circus," Teddy, the Stuffed Bear, was saying to his two friends Knarf, the Shadow Boy, and Hiawatha, the Small-Sized Wooden Indian, "what could I be?"

Teddy waited for his two friends to answer. He was very eager to join a circus, for he had seen pictures all over town of Magicians and Jugglers, and Elephants and Horseback Riders and beautiful Ladies and fine-looking Men catching one another as they swung through the air.

Nothing's more fun

So it seemed to Teddy that nothing in the world would be more fun than to be a part of this wonderful circus that everyone seemed to enjoy so much.

"But, please, what can I be if I join the circus?" he asked again. "Do you think I could be a Juggler?"

Knarf answered, "No, you keep dropping things all the time, Teddy."

"I only drop glasses and dishes and things like that," said Teddy. "I'm sure I can juggle balls and apples in a circus."

But Knarf kept shaking his head and Hiawatha, who was sitting with a blanket over his head, grunted from deep down somewhere.

Trapeze artist

"Oh well," said Teddy, "if I can't be a Juggler, I guess I'll be one of those People who swing on those high things."

"No, you couldn't!" said Knarf. "You're always tripping and falling."

"Oh no," said Teddy, "I only fall down the stairs once in a while and now and then I trip over things like chairs and tables. But I don't fall much."

Knarf kept right on shaking his head and Hiawatha, kept grunting from deep down in the blanket. Being an Indian, Hiawatha hardly ever said words unless he really had to.

Another suggestion

"I guess Hiawatha means I fall down too much, too," Teddy said in a sad voice. "Now let me see, if I can't be a Juggler and I can't be one of those swingers - on - the-high-swings, can I be a—"

Teddy hesitated for an instant.

Then suddenly his face broke into a smile.

"I can be a Clown!" he cried. "That's it! I can be a Clown!"

"No, you can't said Knarf. "I can't!" repeated Teddy. "Why not?"

"I could be a Juggler," Teddy said to Knarf and Hi.

"Clowns are funny," said Knarf. "They make People laugh."

"I make People laugh, don't I?" asked Teddy.

"Sometimes you make them feel very sad," said Knarf. "You sit all alone by yourself under a chair and People look at you and say, 'Poor Teddy.'"

Teddy thought about this and finally he said:

"Yes, that's right."

He agreed

Hiawatha grunted and that meant that he didn't think Teddy would make a very good Clown, either.

Teddy counted off on his fingers the things that he now knew he couldn't be in the circus. He murmured to himself:

"I can't be a Juggler. I can't be a Swinger-on-the-high-swings. I can't be a Clown because I can't make People laugh. I can't be a Horse-back Rider because I can't ride a Horse. I can't be a Lion Tamer because I'm afraid of Lions. I can't be a sword-swallower because I can't swallow swords. I can't be a Magician because I can't do tricks."

Teddy discouraged

Teddy shook his head in the most discouraged way imaginable.

"When what can I be if I join the circus?" he asked.

"Nothing," said Knarf.

And then, suddenly, Hiawatha stuck his head out from underneath the blanket.

Has answer

"You can be a Bear!" he cried.

"That's it! That's it!" shouted Teddy. "I can be a Bear in the circus!"

Teddy was so happy that he wanted to run over and hug his friend—Hiawatha—but he couldn't. Hiawatha had already pulled his head back under the blanket. And all that was left of him was a grunt.

Next time your husband says he's working late...

by JILL BUTTERFIELD

NEXT time your husband creeps home with the milk, a smug smile on his face and that hoary old chestnut of "working-late-at-the-office dear" on his lips, don't rush for the rolling pin, the gin bottle, or mother.

The chances are that the poor old bread-and-butter-butter-winner has been doing just that. No popples. No bridge with the boys. No club. Simply hard and honest toil in the ceaseless rush of a deserted office building.

At least, that is what Business—the school magazine of the big bosses—concludes from their survey of 58 top executives.

Problems

THE magazine's efficiency experts estimate that the typical managing director spends over 80 per cent of his time either interrupting or being interrupted by other people.

They think that "unless a man can settle down to a longish unbroken period either with or without colleagues it is difficult for him to get any major planning, operation under way."

When the men long to get back to the intricacies of a new contract their brilliant partners are bogged down with looking after elderly mothers, trade conferences, or their secretaries' weddings.

Homework

IT'S a bleak little picture, isn't it? — but according to the captains of industry a very true one.

SIR MILES THOMAS, chairman of Monsanto Chemicals, told me: "I have to work every minute of the day to keep up with it all. I also find myself taking work home in the evening, starting early in the morning, and never letting myself get one second behind schedule."

LESLIE BERKE, chairman of the largest dress manufacturing firm in Europe, agreed. "I seldom leave the office before 8.30 at night as I find so much of the working day taken up with matters associated with business but not actually business — trade associations, trade lunches, trade charities."

SIR FREDERIC HOOPER, managing director of the Schweppes group, gets into his office around 8.30 in the morning.

"I make an early start because I hate taking work home in the evening. And evening I have to attend trade functions."

Oh where oh where has my boss-man gone? Whatever has happened to that exciting, well-padded figure with his red carnation and his bad intentions who cruised home to Dorking in a black Rolls-Royce and clouds of cigar smoke.

No self-respecting woman can object to "overtime" when it's overtime without the least snigger of sex about it.

WHAT do you respond with the East hand after your partner opens one diamond? The really old-fashioned response was one no-trump, later, people got around to responding one spade, but the modern technique is to respond one heart. The theory is that if the opener holds four hearts, he can raise you; if he holds four spades, he can show them at the one level.

In the team match one East selected the one heart response. South promptly over-called with one spade and everyone passed.

West opened with three rounds of diamonds. South ruffed the third one; cashed dummy's ace and king of clubs; ruffed dummy's last diamond, cashed the ace of hearts and waited for his last three trump tricks to wind up making two odd.

The other East responded one spade. South passed. West went to two diamonds and when this was passed around to South, he hid two hearts, which became the final contract.

Rupert and the Popweed—21

Rupert clambored about the broken rocks of the island and still cannot see any sense in what is going on. "Why am I being led about like this just because of a bit of popweed that goes bang instead of pop?" he mutters. "What harm have I done?" All

Again South ruffed the third round of diamonds. He could have made four odd if he had cashed high cards and crossed ruffed in the right order, but he went a trifle wrong and managed to gather in only nine tricks, which was still good enough to win the board for him.

Of course, this does not prove that the spade response was inferior to the heart response; it just turned out to be inferior this time.

Clean sweep by Korean cyclists in first stage

Three riders from Korea swept the first three places in the first stage of the Cycle Tour of Hongkong this morning. But their hard, daring riding cost them injuries and two of their riders had to be admitted to hospital.

At the first stage of the five-day tour, the Korean team, consisting of three riders, swept the first three places in the 114-mile race. The team, led by the 22-year-old Lee Hui, won the race in 22 minutes, 22 seconds, with a time of 1:22:22. Lee Hui, who is a former champion of the Korean National Road Race, was the first to cross the finish line. He was followed by the 21-year-old Lee Hui, who was the second to cross the finish line. The third place was taken by the 20-year-old Lee Hui, who was the third to cross the finish line.

Keeping the flag flying in Hongkong were the three local stars, Chow Kwong-chow, P. Gallagher and Mike Watson. They finished in the order behind the Koreans. With the stiff competition on both Chow and Gallagher's side, it is better Watson's position. He was followed by the 21-year-old Lee Hui, who was the second to cross the finish line. Sad end of champion horse

Tokyo, Nov. 23. Sachikaze, a six-year-old Japanese thoroughbred, an 11-time winner in Japanese horse races, dashed across the finishing line in the annual Emperor's Prize Stakes today and dropped dead. He finished last in a field of seven.

The five million yen (about HK$80,000) race was won by dark horse Takamagahara on the 3,200-metre Tokyo Race Course at Fuchu before 32,000 spectators.

HEART ATTACK

Sachikaze had completed in 46 seconds and his earnings totalled 1,063,000 yen (about HK$16,900).

The race track veterinarian said Sachikaze died of a heart attack.

His jockey, Takeo Ito, who had ridden off Sachikaze, said he was shocked.

FIRST RACE

Newlyte Plate: One Mile. Class B. 1961 horses will contest this event.

Genial (H. C. Pui) is in fine form and should fight to the last inch for the premier honours.

Wellcome Again (H. K. Hong) could be next.

For those who are looking for an outsider, Orchid (Alex Lam) is the one to follow.

SECOND RACE

Alyth Handicap: From 1 1/2 Mile Post. The two horses, which are talked of most in connection with this race are Alyth (K. Kwok) and Alyth (K. Kwok).

Here are my estimates of the race.

THIRD RACE

Spinning Wheel (P. Plumby) is the best outsider in this race.

FOURTH RACE

Meikle Handicap: From 2 Mile Post. Gigi (A. J. da Silva) and Cirrus (K. Kwok) should fight out the issue in this event.

I prefer the former.

Viewpoint (T. H. Yau) is dangerous too and longer shots are Efficientie (H. M. Botelho) and Carola (C. Y. Wong).

FIFTH RACE

St. Andrew's Stakes: 1 1/4 Miles. This is the main event of the afternoon and will be contested by Class 3 horses.

Carrie (K. Kwok), having hit winning form, can make it two in a row over this distance.

Gold Badge (H. C. Woo) is good for this distance and will take a lot of beating.

Chiu Tze Loong (Alex Lam) also has been very consistent of late in training and has a good chance of success.

Giant (G. H. W. Oakford) and Nectar (A. J. da Silva) are fit enough to cause an upset here.

SIXTH RACE

Coupar Angus Handicap (First Section): 6 Furlongs 40 Yards. It is about time Pixie (Cruz) came into her own.

SEVENTH RACE

Blairgowrie Plate: One Mile. This race will be fought out by 1961 horses, Class A.

Heimsmann has been well tuned up for this event and should provide Robert Tsai an opportunity to score.

EIGHTH RACE

Coupar Angus Handicap (Second Section): 6 Furlongs 40 Yards. First Prize (R. J. Loughran) will command strong support in the last race of the First Day of the 4th Race Meeting, but will have the difficult task of beating a very fit Grand Moment (K. Kwok).

Other horses, which have shown improvement are Thiolok (James Chow) and Missus J. (P. Plumby).

UNIVERSITY CLASH IN TOP MATCH

By OLLY VAS

The only two undefeated teams in men's softball this year, Yee Jick-fai's Pandas and Frank Wong's University team, clash this Sunday at 1.45 pm in a Junior Division League match. This should turn out to be the best match of the weekend. The Pandas are leading the Junior League so far, with four straight victories and their victims were the White Sox, Indians, Austers and SCAA.

Swedish team beat
Singapore

Singapore, Nov. 23. The visiting Norrköping-Gothenburg combined team scored their second victory when they beat the Singapore team here today by five goals to one after a 2-1 lead at half-time. It was a tough and go affair for three-quarters of the game but the Swedes having better stamina easily overran the local players. In the last few minutes they took full control of the ball and kept passing it among themselves.—AFP.

ARRIVING TODAY

The Norrköping-Gothenburg touring team consisting of 18 leading Swedish players will arrive in Hong Kong by a P.A.L. plane at 4.20 this afternoon. They will play two matches here—against All Hongkong on Sunday at 3.30 pm and against the Combined Chinese on Wednesday at 8 pm.

Lord Mountbatten gives cup for
Thai Army Rugby

London, Nov. 23. Britain's defence chief, Lord Mountbatten, today presented the Thai Armed Forces with a Rugby Football Challenge Cup to help the Thais keep up their enthusiasm for the sport.

The ambassador Morn Lamsan, accompanied by three of his service attaches, accepted the cup.

Lord Mountbatten visited Burma last March. He met the Thai Minister of defence, General Kittakachorn, in Bangkok and heard of a great enthusiasm of Thai soldiers for Rugby Football.

The trophy is a silver bowl, the handles of which are formed by two rampant tigers. The inscription reads: "Rugby Football Challenge Cup presented to the Royal Thai Armed Forces by Admiral of the Fleet The Earl Mountbatten of Burma."—AP.

Green Bay Packers almost sure of Division title

New York, Nov. 24. Texas bolted into the host spot in the Cotton Bowl and the Green Bay Packers took solid command of the Professional National Football League's Western Division after today's top matches of America's Thanksgiving Day football schedule.

The Longhorns, rebounding from a 6-0 upset by Texas Christian University that knocked them out of the No. 1 spot in the College Football ratings, beat old rival Texas A and M 25-0. Green Bay gained a 17-9 victory over Detroit.

In other major matches, New York beat Buffalo 21-14 in an Eastern Division game of the American Professional Football League; and in College games Colgate handed Brown its ninth straight loss by 30-6, unbeaten Fresno State crushed Bowling Green of Ohio 36-6 in the Mercy Bowl and Richmond beat William and Mary 38-18.

Green Bay's victory extended its National Football League Western Division lead to 2½ games and all but clinched its second straight Division title. Second place Detroit with only three games left to play, is virtually out of contention.

UNDEFEATED

Texas victory gave it a 9-1 regular season record and assured it the host spot in the Cotton Bowl. Arkansas can be the Longhorns in the conference rankings, but Texas will be the Cotton Bowl host by virtue of its 33-7 regular season verdict over the Packers.

In some of the other games Washington and Lee took a 33-20 decision from Washington University and closed out its first undefeated season since 1915. Tennessee Tech beat Middle Tennessee State 7-6 and clinched the Ohio Valley Conference title. Memphis State crushed Chattanooga 41-13 and Virginia Military defeated Virginia Tech 6-0.—AP.

TWO FIRST DIVISION
LEAGUE HOCKEY
MATCHES ON SUNDAY

By NUMPERE

League hockey resumes this weekend with a programme of rearranged fixtures. There are two in the First Division, both at Soekunpoo on Sunday afternoon. The first of these is Nav Bharat 'A' and IRC 'A'.

Nav Bharat have only gained one point from their last three matches, whilst IRC have gained six beating Recreation 'A' and Macanese 'A' in the process. IRC should win again but, if Nav Bharat's Gardner can again produce the form he showed in the Interport trials a couple of weeks ago then they may salvage a point.

The other match features Army 'A' at home to Macanese 'A' and this should be well worth watching.

These teams have two of the best forward lines in the Colony, but I think Macanese have the edge in defence and will win by a narrow margin.

Macao visit

In the Second Division Army 'B' should win comfortably against Dutch Hockey Club and I cannot see Nav Bharat 'B' gaining their first point of the season at the expense of KCC 'B'.

There are only two Third Division fixtures and, in these, Nav Bharat 'C' should beat Combined Schools and IRC 'B' take both points from Macanese 'D'.

In the Ladies' League all three fixtures will be rather one-sided with the three top teams KCC, Greplins 'A' and Recreation all recording easy victories against St. Georges, KGV 'B' and KGV 'C'.

The RAF are making their annual visit to Macao, and I shall be blowing the whistle over there and attempting to weigh up the prospects for the Interport match in February.

Fixtures

The following are the fixtures for the weekend:
TOMORROW
KCC vs. St. Georges at King's Park 2.30 pm. Umpires: J. Barrow, J. Ferraz.
KGV 'B' vs. Recreation at KGV 2.30 pm. Umpires: H. Malr, J. Moreau.
KGV 'C' vs. Greplins 'A' at KGV 4 pm. Umpires: M. Caswell, J. K. Fellows.
SUNDAY
Men's First Division
Nav Bharat 'A' vs. IRC 'A' at Soekunpoo 2.30 pm. Umpires: J. Miller, J. Howe.
Army 'A' vs. Macanese 'A' at Soekunpoo 4 pm. Umpires: M. Singh, E. Lall.

Only Senior match

Another team which plays its heart out every time it shows up at the ball park is Barry Mayfield's Antelopes.

They are mostly drawn from the ranks of the Royal Warranted Cavalry Regiment here and they are the first team in softball this year to reach a century of runs against that is. They have conceded 105 runs in five games but this has not deterred them in the least. They play Johnny Chaves' Indians in the first game on Sunday, at 10 am.

The Indians are now playing time to form and should win the game with plenty to spare. Ray Cordeno's Giants take on the U.S. Navy team from the station ship, the "Haverfield" at 11.30 am in the only Senior game of the week and are favoured to win in a contest.

The two Navy teams that have played here so far, one from the "Boyd" and this one from the current station-ship, have not made any sort of impression on players or fans.

There will be only one game in the afternoon as the Ladies' fixture between SCAA 'A' and the Pirates has had to be rescheduled to a later date.

'Commonwealth

London, Nov. 23. Lord Brabazon of Tara, president of the British Professional Golfers' Association, said here tonight that some players frowned upon the idea of a Commonwealth team playing the United States for the Ryder Cup golf trophy.

He said there had been some talks of a Commonwealth side, rather than Britain, meeting the Americans for the trophy, but it would be very hard to select who should play.

Lord Brabazon was speaking at the annual dinner of the British PGA.

He said that the next Ryder Cup match at Atlanta in 1963 would have an extra day during which four ball foursomes would be played.—Reuter.

SQUATTER FIRE IN KOWLOON

Six huts were destroyed and about 60 people made homeless in a fire at a squatter area on the hillside north of the Wong Tai Sin resettlement estate in Kowloon City early this morning.

The fire broke out at a bean curd factory in Chuk Yuen Lam Hop Village at about 12.40 am.

Six fire engines and two ambulances were rushed to the scene and the fire was put out at 1.11 am.

No casualties were reported.

He's seeking FE freight connections

A Swiss freight agent is now in the Colony seeking Far East connections for his company, one of the largest freight forwarding firms in Europe.

Mr. Al. Edwin Jaeger, head of the freight department of Panalpina World Transport Ltd., of Zurich, which owns 62 branch firms in Europe and in America.

Panalpina's connections include all forms of freight transportation, warehousing, trucking, airfreight, river barges and rail freight.

Mr. Jaeger, a former cargo executive of Swissair, is currently touring the Far East seeking connections for his firm.

"We have decided to move into the Far East," he said, "because it is quickly becoming a common market, and it is also developing at a fantastic rate. As for air freight and shipping, Hongkong and Tokyo are the two most important points in the Far East."

TRAFFIC

"This is because they both provide two-way traffic to Europe. In addition to all this, Hongkong trade and manufacturing is also growing by leaps and bounds and of course this brings an expansion in her exports. And that is where we come in," Mr. Jaeger added.

"There is plenty of potential in this market and we feel that rather than open our own office here, it would be better to work with local agents."

Panalpina, as a freight holding company, was formed in 1952 and gradually it added various transportation lines to its business, until now it is the only company in Europe of this size. It owns outright all of the 62 world-wide companies which handle their clients' freight.

This is Mr. Jaeger's third visit to the Colony and he plans to return again in the spring. "Now that I have been put in charge of the air freight section with the aim of building it up exclusively, I think that the Far East will figure strongly in these expansion plans."

Mr. Jaeger leaves for Bangkok and Europe by Swissair on Tuesday.

SEAWALL TO BE BUILT AT RECLAMATION

A seawall of about 650 feet in length is to be built shortly at the Jordan-road reclamation near the Jordan-road Ferry concourse.

The seawall, constructed on the seaward side, will contain the filling for the first stage of the reclamation of some 5.5 acres of land for improving the Jordan-road Ferry concourse and widening the roads in the area.

A pump-house will also be built on the reclamation. Upon completion, it will be used for pumping salt water for air conditioning purposes.

BLUNDERBUSS BRIDGE TO BE RECONSTRUCTED

Blunderbuss Bridge in Muk Fu Ferry-road in the Man Kam To area of the New Territories is to be reconstructed shortly.

The existing Bailey Bridge is in a weak condition and is not wide enough to allow for two-way traffic. Upon reconstruction, the bridge will be 120 feet long and 25 feet wide.

At the same time, 600 feet of approach roads to the bridge will be widened. The widened roads will each be 25 feet wide and will each have a 20-foot cartway and a five-foot foot-path.

Choral Group weaknesses camouflaged

By D. E. GRAY

MAESTRO Guadri deserved better support from the Choral Group singers than he received at his concert last evening in St. Paul's Convent School.

The published programme listed 45 singers (which is not a large chorus for tackling excerpts from a Mendelssohn Oratorio, and two Italian operas) and one-third of these were absent. It was also regrettable to find stalwarts like Lola Young no longer in the chorus.

Like many other choruses in the Far East, this group is weak in basses. But the imbalance was effectively camouflaged in the first half of the programme by the excellent organ playing of Father Luigi Manti.

In the Mendelssohn Oratorio, the organist's accompaniment was divided between the organ and a piano played by Maria Leung.

Time and again the sonorous bass and modulated phrasing of the organ came to the rescue of the chorus, and transformed what might otherwise have been a rather thin, although very thoughtful performance, into something really very pleasant to hear.

Of the soloists, the soprano, Miss F. F. Poon, appealed to me the most—she has a rather pure, vibrato-free natural voice which suited the message of the music very well.

In the second half, the organ was sadly missed. In my opinion, Maestro Guadri was wise not to employ a 5th rate orchestra, as has happened in past years.

Unless players can spare the time to practise and form themselves into a coherent ensemble it is better not to try an orchestra.

I suppose it would have been too much to ask the redoubtable Father Manti to try to make a Mendelssohn Oratorio like a theatre orchestra—nevertheless, the anti-climax which results with the background tinkling which we heard in the Bellini arias is most disappointing.

Of the soloists, the bass, Lam Ting-fai (who sang Vi ravviso, a lough anen) was very good, but the soprano was not quite equal to the technical demands of the aria Come per me sereno.

The musical glimpses from Verdi's La Traviata, the last item on the programme, were more rewarding.

Here soprano Laura Tuan and tenor Ho Kwan-ching, gave a very musically performance, and were real towers of strength. Laura Tuan makes an eminently suitable Violetta—she was convincing, her intonation was excellent, and it is a pleasure to say that this is the best performance of La Traviata selections I have heard in Hongkong. Particularly fine was her aria Ah, Fors'è Lui, despite the thin piano accompaniment.

Ho Kwan-ching's voice is similarly self-trained and is particularly suited for this kind of opera.
